ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A device is provided for the analysis of samples. The device includes a plurality of sample-containment features and a non-fluorescent quenching material for minimizing cross-talk between optical signals emitted from or directed toward the sample-containment features.